IDENTITY THEFT SITUATIONS

A friend of yours have send you a screenshot of your photos and name from a dating app. You are not on any dating apps, and you have never been.
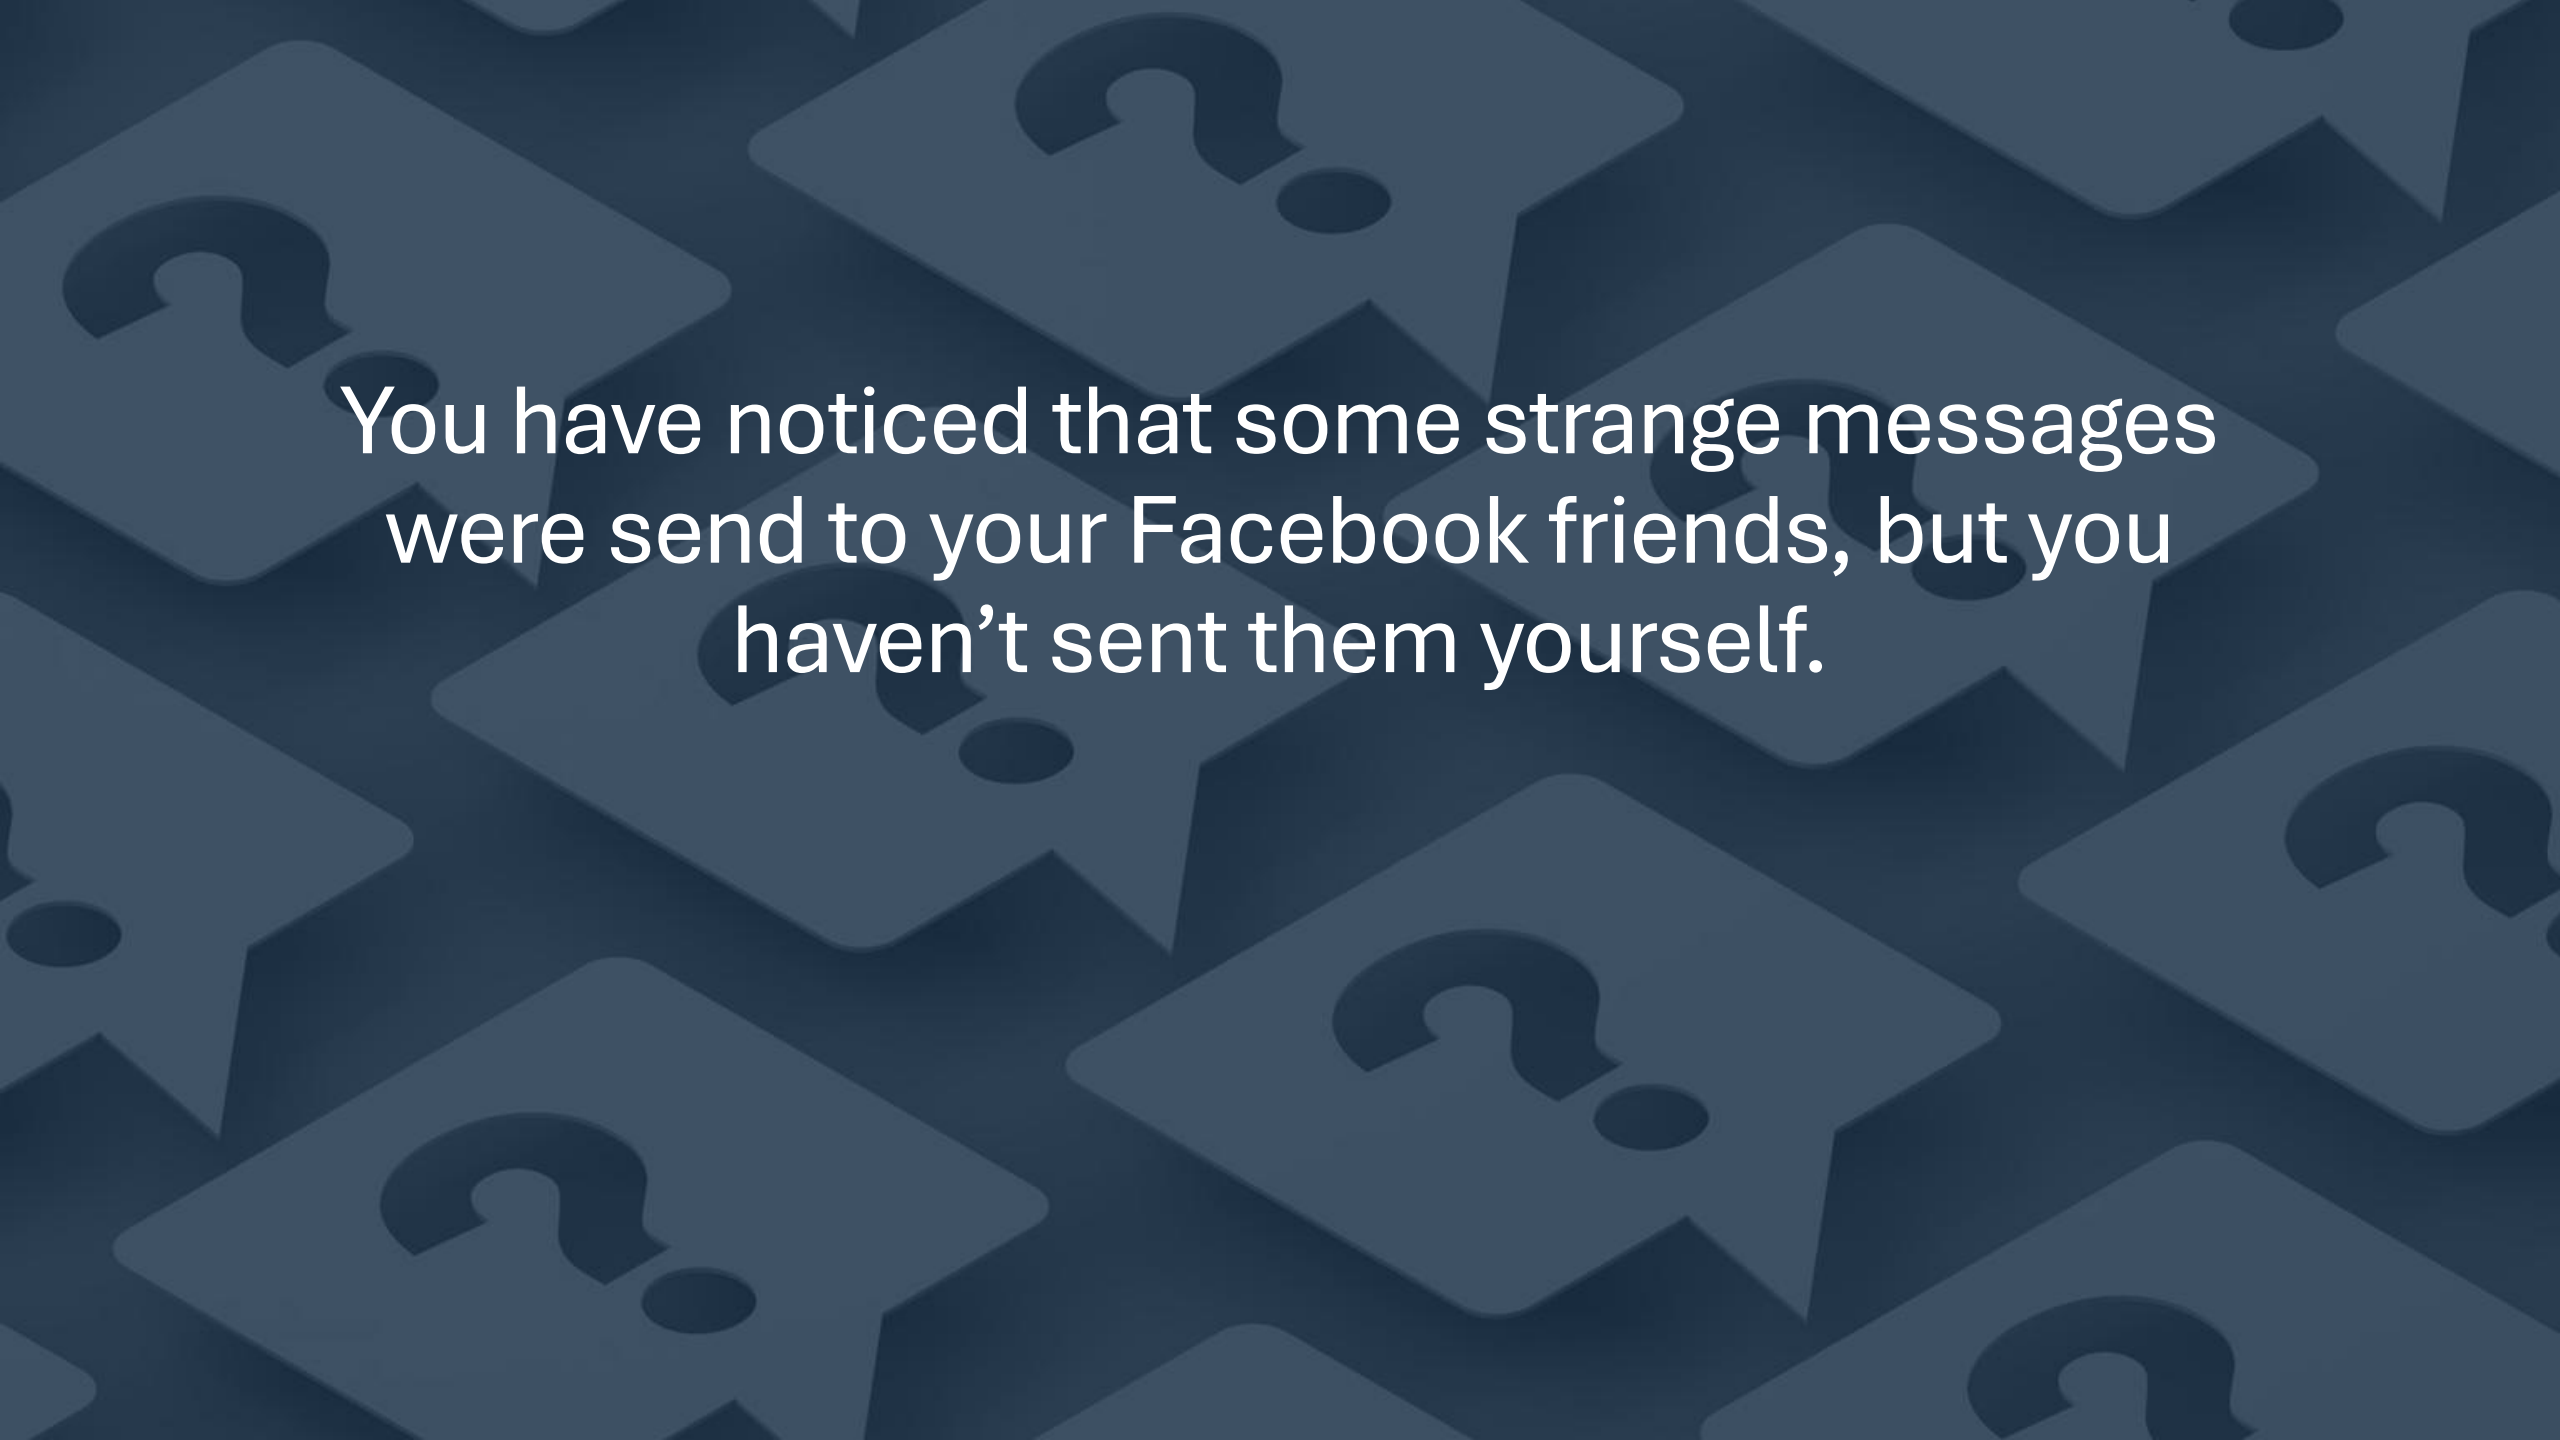

In monthly report you have noticed that a few hundred euros were spent on perfume, but you haven't bought any perfume this month.

In a period of one week, you have got many strange calls with questions about the car you are selling. Guess what? You have no idea what they are talking about.
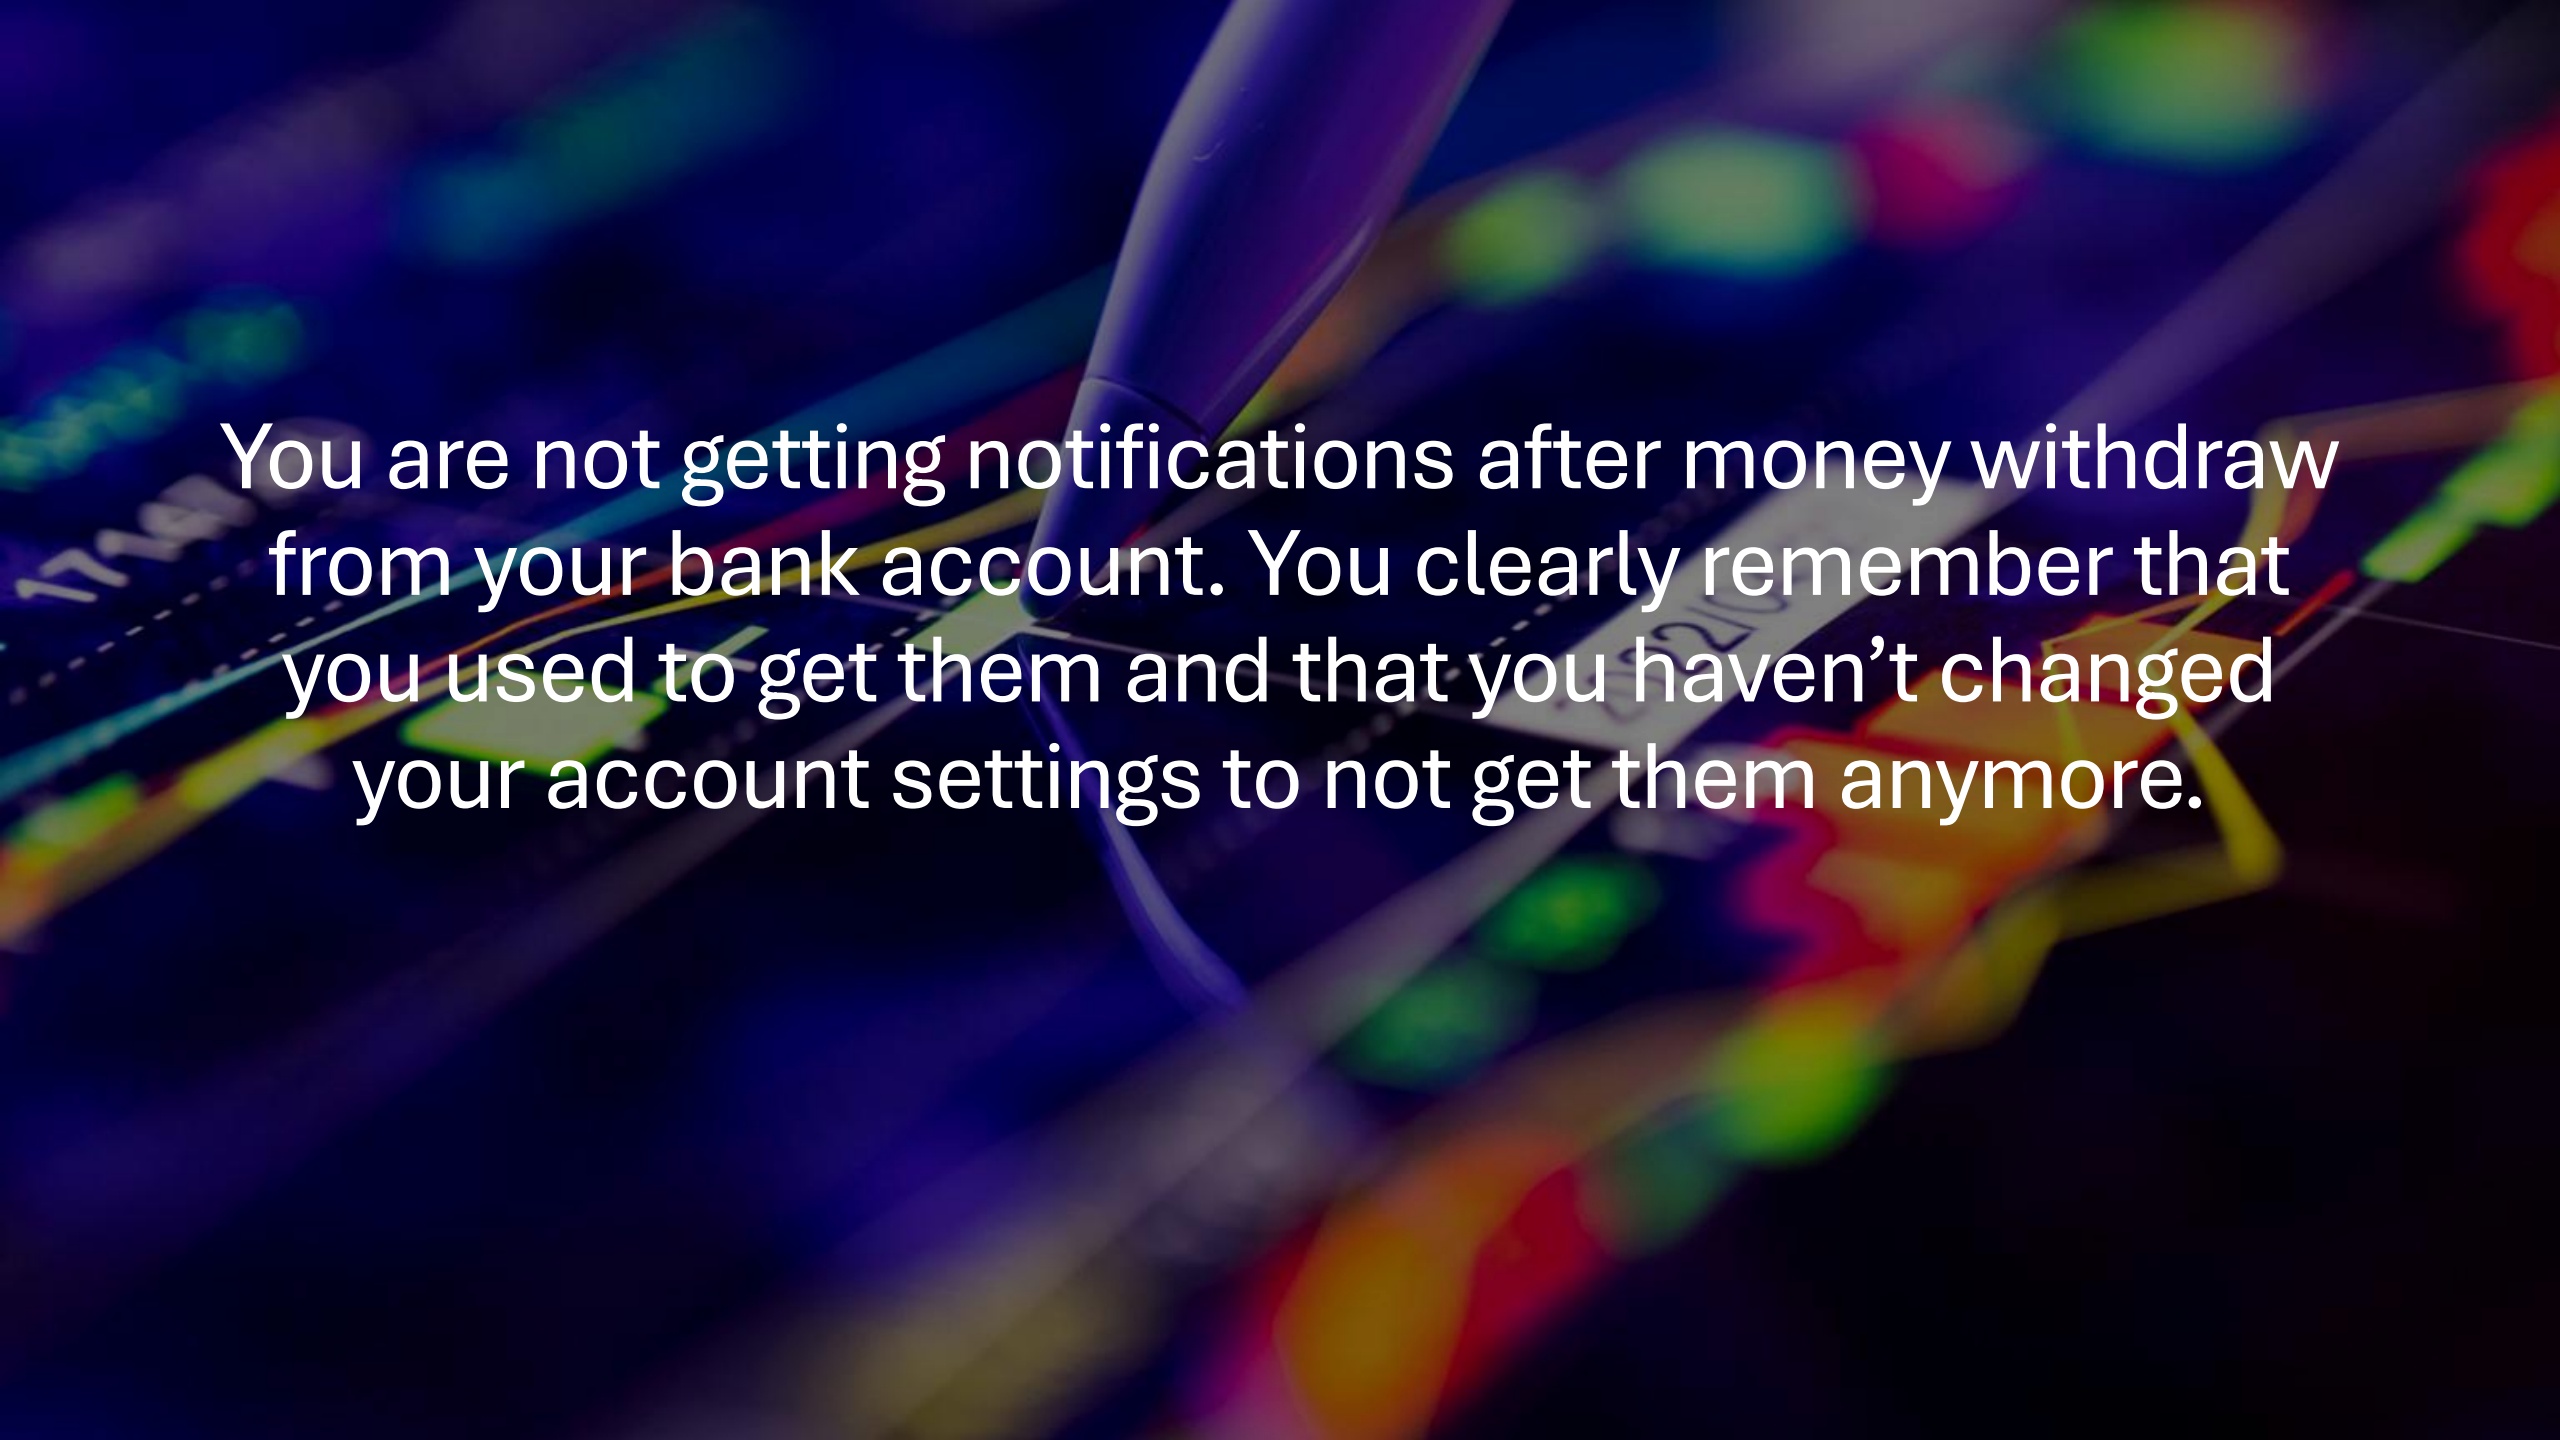

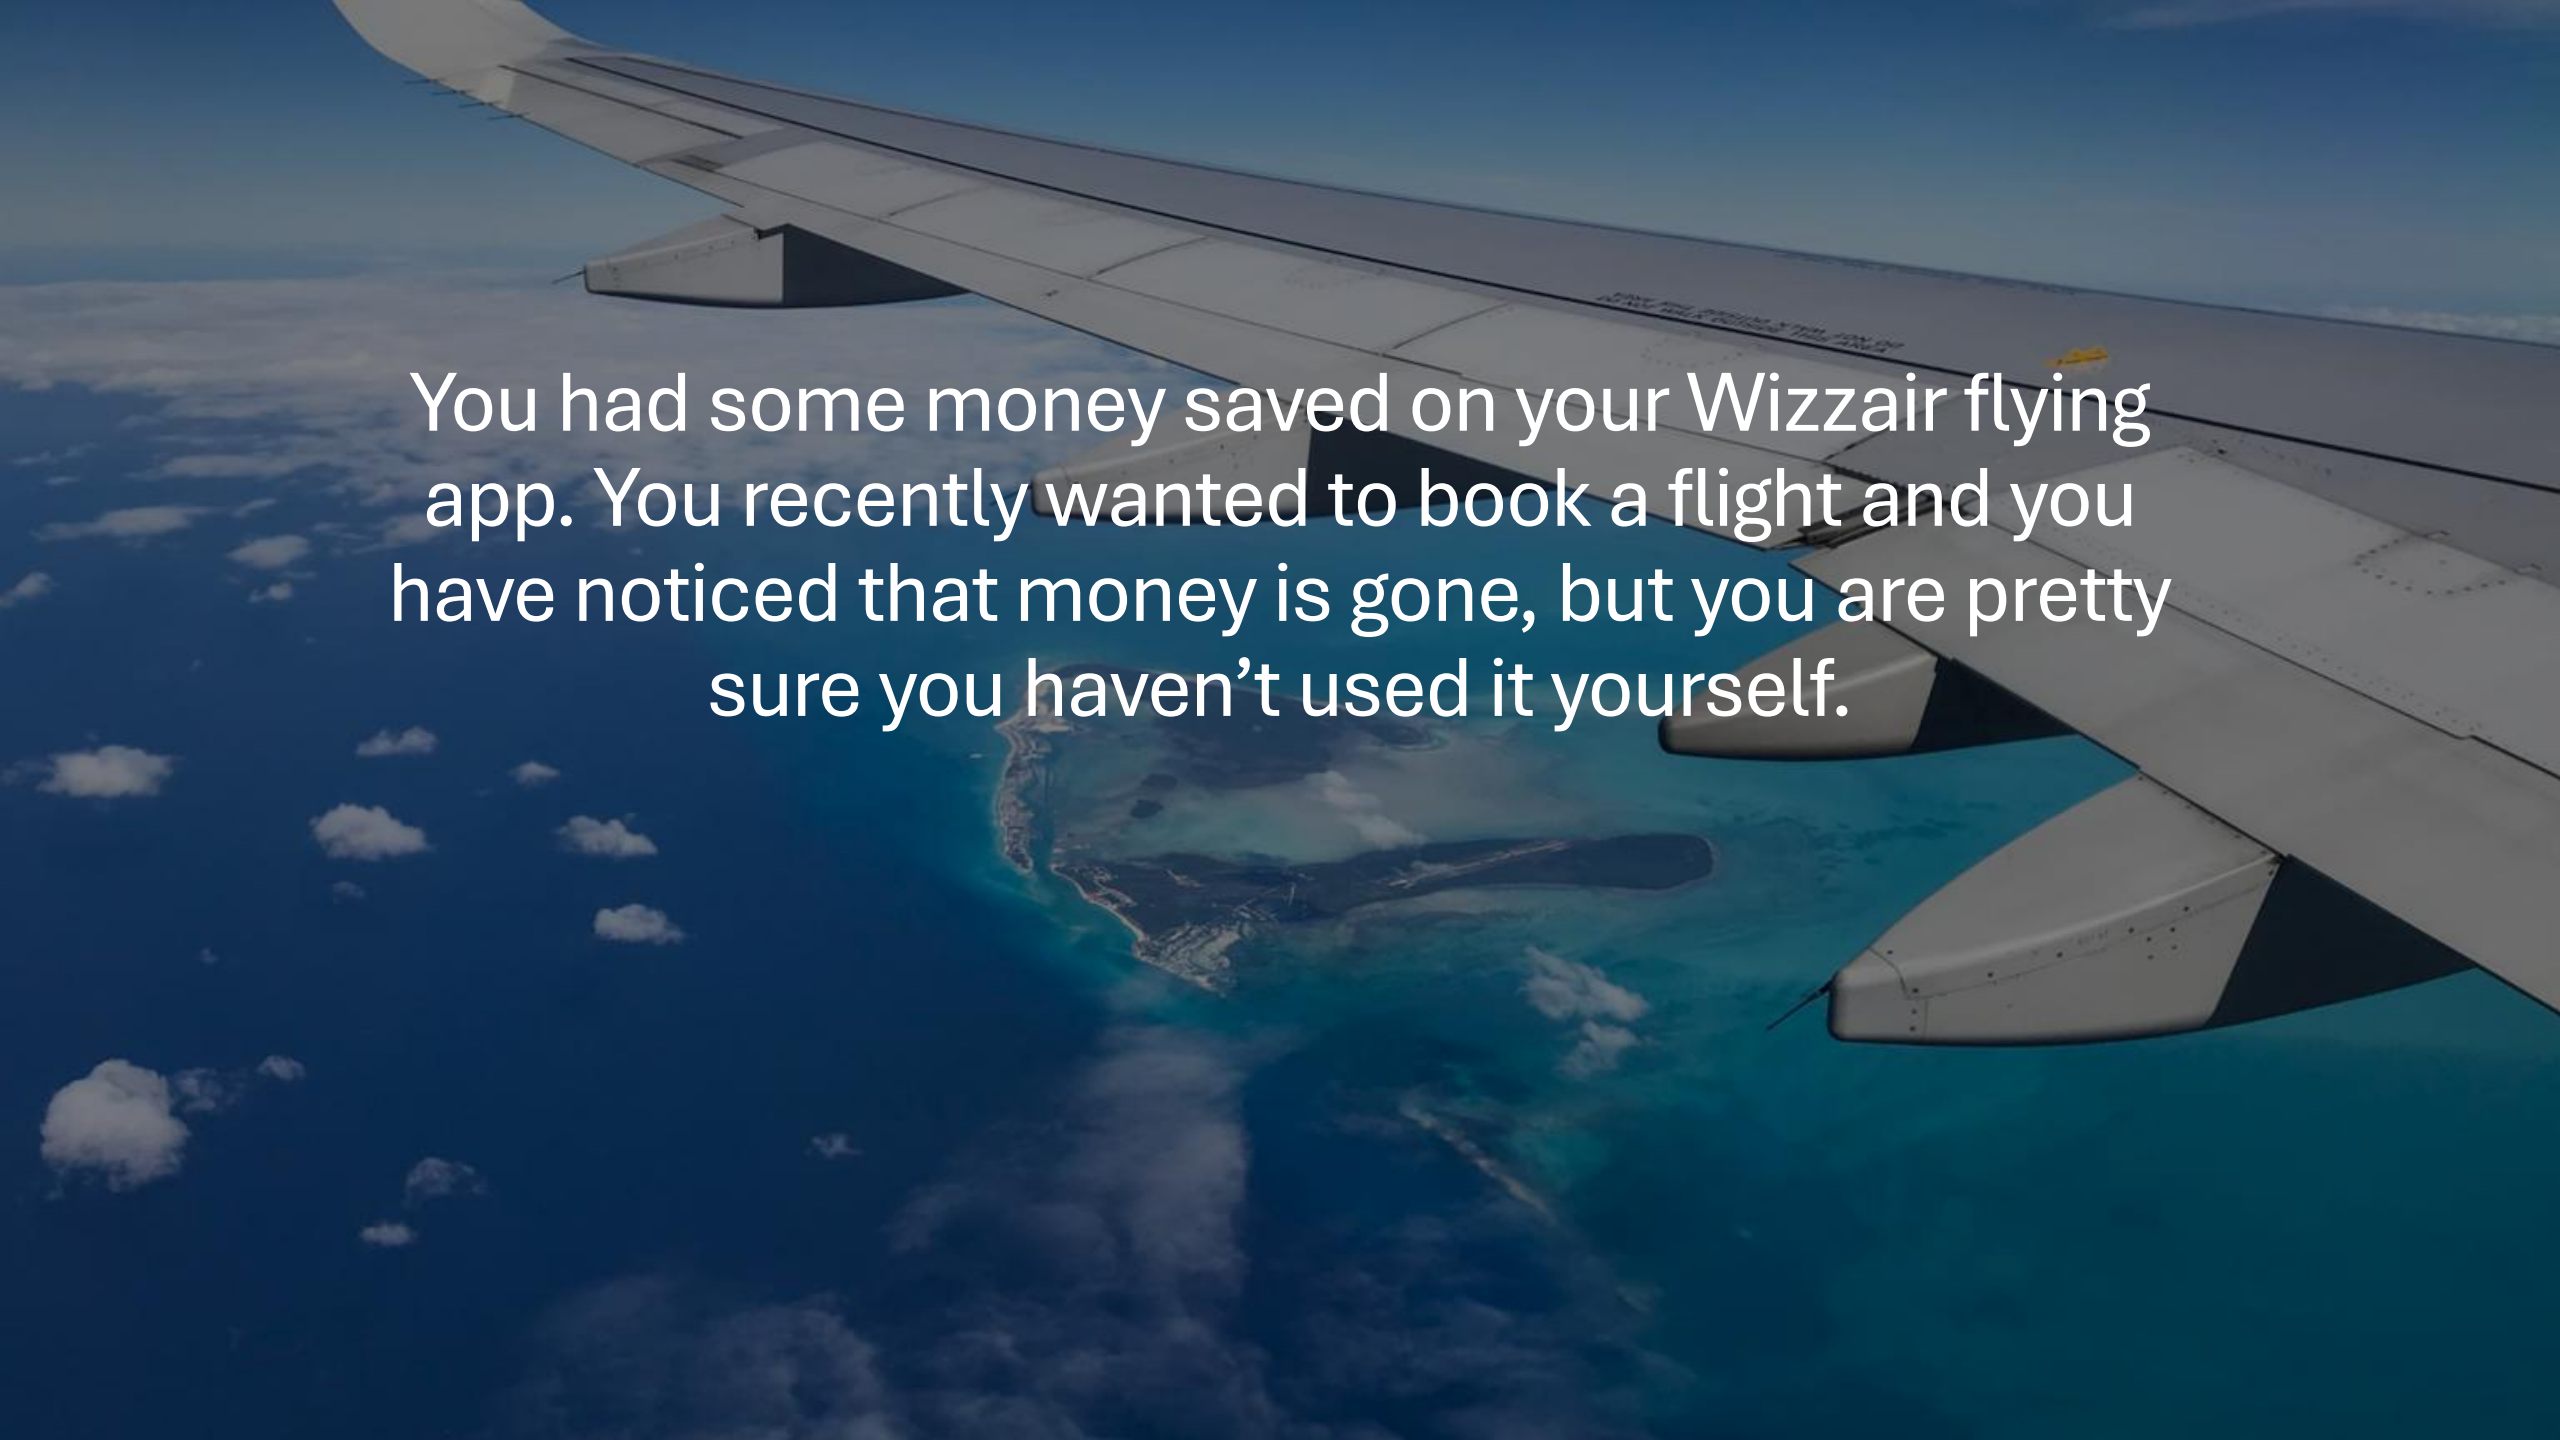

Someone applied for loan by using your personal data.

You have noticed that some strange messages were send to your Facebook friends, but you haven't sent them yourself.
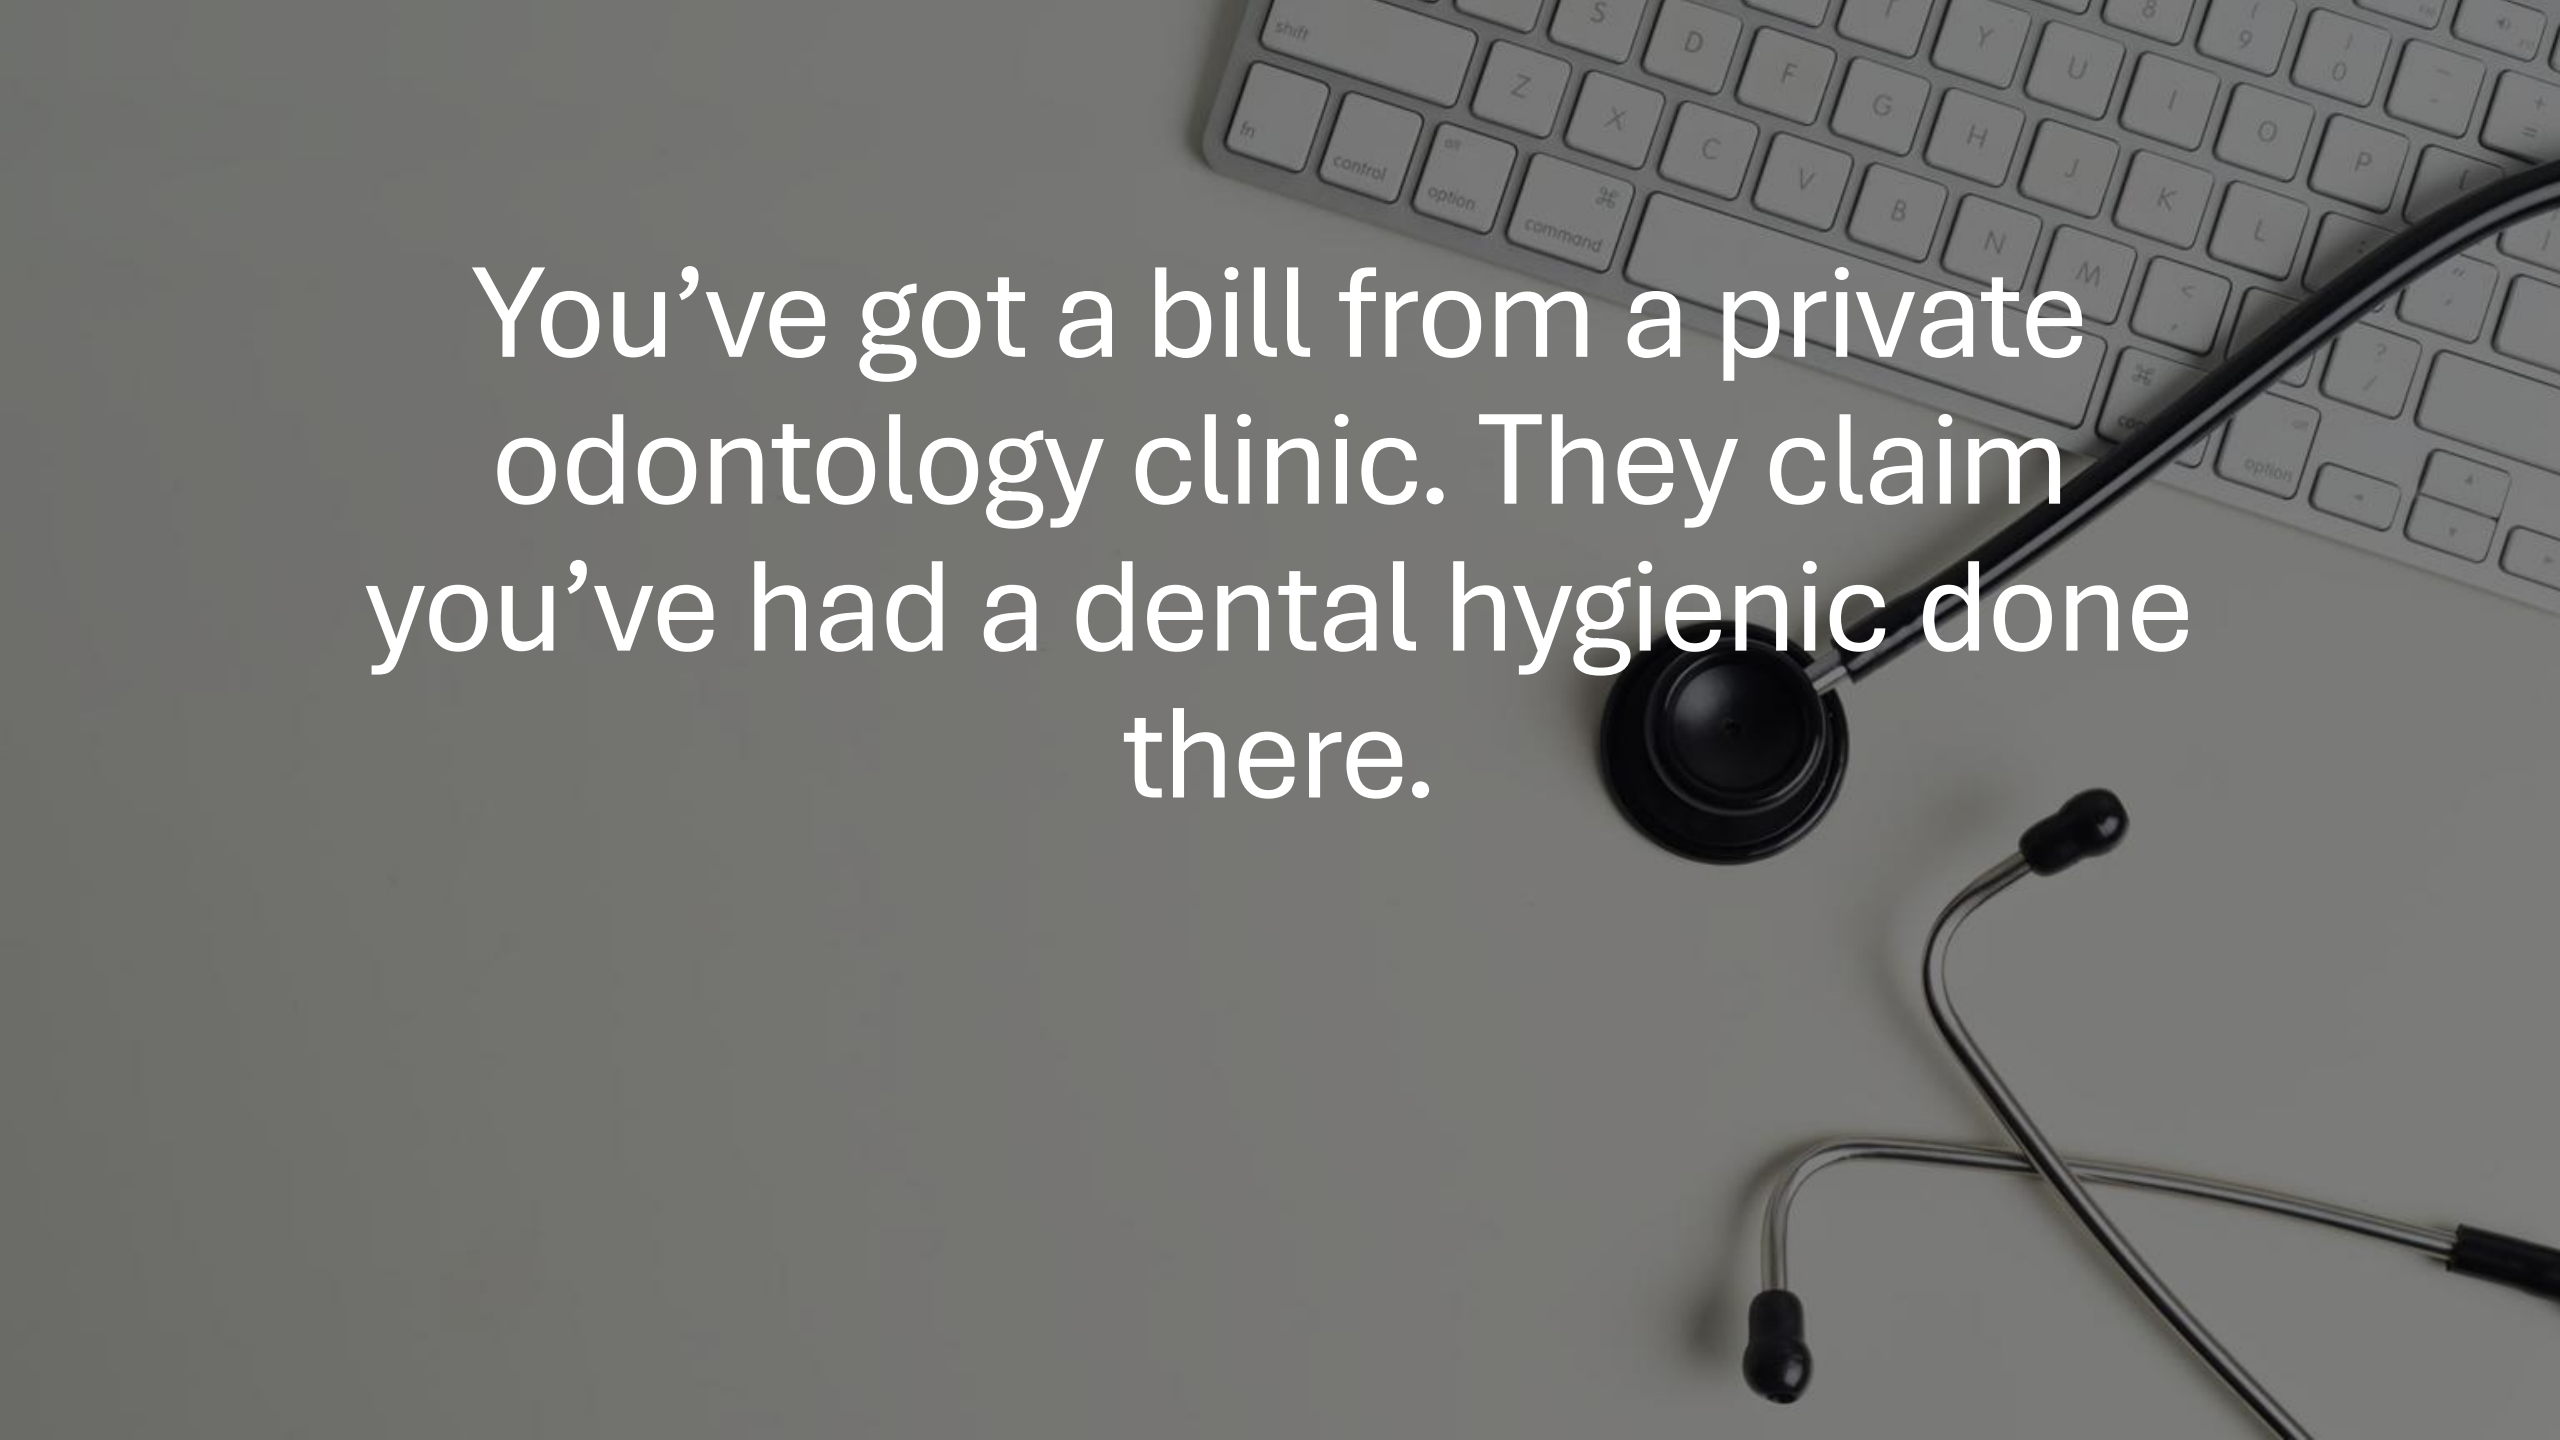

You are not getting notifications after money withdraw from your bank account. You clearly remember that you used to get them and that you haven't changed your account settings to not get them anymore.

You had some money saved on your Wizzair flying app. You recently wanted to book a flight and you have noticed that money is gone, but you are pretty sure you haven't used it yourself.

You've got a bill from a private odontology clinic. They claim you've had a dental hygienic done there.